5 Question 4

LSAT Linus is the original founder of Thunderbird Cosmetics, a Canadian organic cosmetics brand. Thunderbird was a private company until it listed its shares on the TSX in 2018 by way of an initial public offering. LSAT Linus still owns 15% of the common shares of Thunderbird and is its largest shareholder.

The board of directors of Thunderbird recently entered into a merger of equals transaction with a prominent competitor, Point Grey Beauty Products. Each shareholder of Thunderbird would receive 0.75 shares of Point Grey in exchange for each Thunderbird share held.

The transaction will be effected by way of a plan of arrangement pursuant to the Business Corporations Act (British Columbia). LSAT Linus is very underwhelmed by the transaction and votes his shares against the transaction at Thunderbird's shareholders' meeting. He believes that the valuation implied by receiving 0.75 Point Grey shares for each Thunderbird share grossly undervalues Thunderbird.

What rights does Linus in respect of the transaction? How does he exercise these rights and what is the process he will have to go through?

6 Question 5

Thunderbird Airlines is a small airline and has been severely impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic. As a result of various travel restrictions that are imposed as a result of the pandemic, on March 31, 2020, Thunderbird was forced to cancel all of its international flights for which it had already collected $2 million in airfares from customers. It provided credit vouchers to its customers for the cancelled flights, which customers could use when international travel resumed. On December 31, 2020, the travel restrictions were still in place.

What would be the accounting treatment for the above on December 31, 2020?

On March 31, 2021, Thunderbird entered into a government support program, in which the federal government provided Thunderbird with an emergency loan that would be repayable 3 years later. However, the government required an undertaking from Thunderbird that it would issue refunds to customers whose flights were previously cancelled and who did not want the credit voucher.

What would be the accounting treatment for the above on March 31, 2021?

In your answers, describe and analyze any applicable accounting criteria for the proposed treatment.

PART 3 - CASE ANALYSIS (8 QUESTIONS FOR 35 MARKS)

Provide your written analysis in Examplify.

Refer to the Thunderbird Trailers Inc. financial statements handout accompanying this examination for the financial statements to be used for this Case Analysis. Show your work for all calculations.

Thunderbird Trailers Inc. manufactures and sells a diverse range of RV trailers. It is headquartered in Vancouver. It had strong RV sales growth from 2018 to 2019 before the COVID-19 pandemic took a significant toll on its business in 2020. Thunderbird's manufacturing facility put in place a number of capacity restrictions to help promote social distancing, which resulted in lower RV inventory production in 2020. RV sales were also negatively affected as consumers were traveling less, saving more and less willing to make large purchases like RV trailers.

MARKS

4 Question 1

Thunderbird was considering an acquisition of Point Grey Trailers. Point Grey is a competitor and its valuation came down to a very attractive level in 2020 due to the industry headwinds. Point Grey's 2020 financial year results were as follows:

Revenue for year ended December 31, 2020: $385 million
Net income for year ended December 31, 2020: $25 million
Assets at December 31, 2020: $140 million
Liabilities at December 31, 2020: $130 million
Shareholders' Equity at December 31, 2020: $10 million

- A. In the context of this potential transaction, what would pro forma financial statements be?
- B. If Thunderbird was a reporting issuer and its shares were listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange, would Thunderbird be required to prepare pro forma financial statements under applicable securities laws? Make reference to the three specific tests under applicable securities law.

4 Question 2

Calculate the following ratios for Thunderbird for fiscal 2020 (show your work) and provide an explanation as to their purpose for readers:

- 1. Quick ratio (acid test)
- 2. Inventory turnover

- 3. Receivables turnover
- 4. Interest coverage ratio

5 Question 3

Marine Drive Ventures is a U.S. private equity firm and is interested in acquiring Thunderbird. It reviews Thunderbird's financial metrics and sees that its market price on the stock exchange is $25.00 as at December 31, 2020.

- A. What is Thunderbird's price to earnings ratio as of December 31, 2020?
- B. If other companies in the RV manufacturing industry were trading at a price to earnings ratio that was 22% lower than the ratio for Thunderbird, what could this be a sign of?
- C. Describe two common valuation methodologies that Marine Drive could use in respect of Thunderbird and how they could result in valuations different than the implied valuation of Thunderbird based on its stock price and price to earnings ratio above.

8 Question 4

Marine Drive is focused on Thunderbird's financing needs and challenges, particularly since the pandemic has had a material adverse impact on its cash position and liquidity. As a result, Marine Drive is extremely focused on Thunderbird's working capital. It wants its counsel to negotiate a working capital purchase price adjustment in the purchase agreement.

- A. What is your calculation of Thunderbird's working capital as at December 31, 2020?
- B. Describe the purpose of a working capital purchase price adjustment in the purchase agreement. Discuss three issues that frequently arise in negotiating such provisions (consider using examples to help explain these issues to Thunderbird).

Marine Drive is also in discussions with a lender, Students United Bank, to arrange a credit facility to help finance the acquisition and provide Thunderbird with more cash to sustain itself through the pandemic. Students United Bank agrees to provide Thunderbird with a revolving credit facility.

C. Provide a proposed definition for a Debt / EBITDA ratio that Students United could use in a credit agreement. How can this definition be used within the context of a credit agreement in ways that can protect the bank's interests (i.e., what types of terms and conditions could this definition be used in)? D. Based on your proposed definition, provide a calculation for your ratio for the 2020 financial year.

3 Question 5

In 2020, Thunderbird was involved in a dispute with a key tire supplier, West Mall Tires, for its RV trailers. West Mall had previously provided a minimum number of tires to Thunderbird under a supply agreement that was entered into 10 years ago. As a matter of practice, Thunderbird always ordered at least 500 tires from West Mall. West Mall had always planned its year and production accordingly.

Due to the effects of the pandemic and its impact on RV sales, Thunderbird only ordered 200 tires from West Mall in 2020. On November 30, 2020, West Mall sent Thunderbird a demand letter requiring it to purchase the 500 tires it had historically been ordering and indicated that West Mall had already produced them and that they were sitting in its inventory. The value of the unsold tires in West Mall's inventory was $100,000. West Mall also asserted these tires could not be sold elsewhere since the size of the tires was unique for Thunderbird's RV specifications.

After failing to come to a mutually acceptable arrangement, West Mall commenced litigation against Thunderbird on December 30, 2020 and demanded that it purchase 500 tires pursuant to the supply agreement and past practice as a specific performance remedy or alternatively to pay West Mall damages. Thunderbird resists on the basis that the practice of ordering 500 tires was an undocumented practice and that, in any case, it would be entitled to rely upon a force majeure provision in the supply agreement that excuses Thunderbird from its obligations due to circumstances beyond its reasonable control.

Discuss any disclosure and accounting obligations that Thunderbird may have with respect to the litigation (with reference to any applicable accounting criteria). What facts or assumptions would be relevant to your analysis?

5 Question 6

Thunderbird has been very conservative in its public disclosure and only publishes metrics that are presented on the face of its financial statements. Certain stock market analysts that cover Thunderbird complain that Thunderbird is being overly conservative and that all of its publicly traded competitors publish alternative metrics, particularly Adjusted EBITDA and Free Cash Flow. They criticize Thunderbird in their research reports since the failure to provide these metrics to the market makes it more difficult to compare and benchmark Thunderbird against its competitors. As a result, Thunderbird begins to trade at a 15% price to earnings ratio discount to its peers. Thunderbird's management team decides to begin providing these metrics in its annual reports to avoid this trading discount.

- A. Provide a proposed definition and calculation (for the 2020 financial year) for Adjusted EBITDA for Thunderbird to use in the annual report.
- B. Provide a proposed definition and calculation (for the 2020 financial year) for Free Cash Flow for Thunderbird to use in the annual report.
- C. Provide an explanation as to why your proposed definitions above are useful to readers and any related limitations of your definition. What are the limitations imposed by Canadian securities laws?

3 Question 7

Review Thunderbird's cash flow statement for 2020. Provide an overall analysis of its cash flow position from its three types of activities and whether you view this as favourable or unfavourable in the context of Thunderbird, particularly in light of the expected effects of the pandemic on its business.

3 Question 8

The Thunderbird balance sheet discloses a line for "Commitments and Contingencies". What can these items be? Why is there no dollar amount for that line?
